

Tennessee U.S. Senate Republican Statewide Poll Results

POLLING METHODOLOGY

For this poll, a sample of likely Republican households was chosen from the population registered to vote in the state of Tennessee for a “hybrid” automated (for landlines)/texted (for cell phones) poll, where 33% of the phone numbers were landlines and 67% of the phone numbers were cell phones. There were 600 completed responses to 13 poll questions.

The survey was conducted July 18-19. The margin of error, with a 95% confidence interval, was 4.0%. The geographic breakdown of the respondents was as follows: 44% from eastern Tennessee, 45% from middle Tennessee, and 11% from western Tennessee (The explanation of the boundaries of these regions is graphically depicted in Exhibit A at the end of the poll analysis).

SUMMARY

JMC Analytics and Polling independently conducted this poll (which was not commissioned by any candidate or committee) for the Tennessee Republican primary for the U.S. Senate. There are three main takeaways from this poll: (1) Donald Trump remains in good shape among the Republican electorate, although there is a statistically significant number of fellow partisans who disapprove of his job performance, (2) in the U.S. Senate race, Bill Hagerty has a narrow lead that is within the margin of error, and (3) mask usage is overwhelmingly favored.

Among Republicans, Donald Trump remains popular, although his level of support is substantially different depending on the ideological predisposition of the respondent. Among very/somewhat conservative voters, his approval is nearly unanimous, but that support sharply drops off among less conservative and non-partisan voters. Similarly, his approval is 8:1 among Evangelical voters, but is only 52-45% among non-Evangelicals. Similarly, his support drops off among the youngest (18-34) age group.

In the Republican primary for the U.S. Senate, Bill Hagerty has a narrow lead whether or not undecided “leaners” are included, although that lead is within the statistical margin of error. From a geographic standpoint, his strongest area is in the western part of the state. Similarly, he runs strongest among “very conservative” voters (40-31%/47-36% if undecided “leaners” are included). Support also differs by the gender and age of the respondent: there is an 11 point gender gap (14 points with “leaners” included) whereby male respondents support Sethi, while female respondents favor Hagerty. Finally, Hagerty’s biggest lead (9 points/13 points with “leaners” included) is among those who are 65 years old or older.

Respondents were also asked their opinion about wearing a mask to control the spread of the coronavirus, and on this subject, there was broad and overwhelming support among the Republican primary electorate. Even Evangelicals (thought to be more strongly conservative) are in favor 50-33%. Similarly, support is strongest (69-19%) among those at least 65 years old. However, there is considerable ideological polarization on this issue: those who are very conservative are opposed 45-39%, while those who are very liberal are 96-4% in favor.

In summary, Bill Hagerty has a lead in the primary race for the U.S. Senate, but it’s not a secure lead against Manny Sethi.
